James Piotrowski is a proud husband and the father of two wonderful children. He grew up the son of a U.S. Army officer, moving across the nation and the world so that his father could be where his country needed him. After finishing law school at Case Western Reserve University, James found a career that combined his love of service with his passion for the Rocky Mountains. Since coming to Boise, James has divided his time between practicing law, raising a family, and enjoying everything our state offers.

James is challenging Rep. Raul Labrador to protect the values that make Idaho great. James's top priorities are protecting Idaho's heritage from politicians and lobbyists who wish to transfer public land to state ownership, limit access, and privatize the places we hunt, fish, and ride. He will also work to insure veterans receive the care and support they have earned, and he will fight to break through the gridlock in Washington, D.C. and bring good paying jobs to Idaho.

Idaho deserves real leadership that produces real results. James will fight every day to bring people together, solve problems, and move Idaho forward.
