Secretary of State Releases Final Day Details of Idaho 2022 Primary Audit

Boise, Idaho – Idaho Secretary of State Lawrence Denney today released the final day’s audit preliminary findings, wrapping up the last 3 of 8 counties reviewed by IDSOS audit teams last week. Day Three counties included Kootenai, Bannock, and Madison counties, each of which had a findings margin of error well under the pre-defined tolerance threshold of 0.5% noted variances. The specific details for each were:

Kootenai

- All ballots from Precincts 304, 317, 408, 409, and 513. (approx. 2,148 ballots*)
- 0 errors or variances upon secondary review (Initial review was off by -19, discovered they hadn’t sorted all ballot boxes on first pass so were missing a significant number unsorted)
- Races audited: Republican House Seat 4B (Price/Amador) in Precincts 408 and 409; Republican Secretary of State (McGrane/Moon/Souza) in Precincts 304, 317, and 513.

Bannock

- All ballots from Precincts Pocatello 001, Pocatello 003, Pocatello 011, Pocatello 013, Pocatello 19, Pocatello 21, Pocatello 37, Pocatello 42, Chubbuck 057, and Mink Creek 066. (at least 2,180 ballots*)
- (-1) attributed to a sorting error
- Race audited: Republican Secretary of State (McGrane/Moon/Souza).

Madison

- All ballots from Precincts Plano, Hibbard, Salem, Adams, Pioneer East, Porter Park, City Center, University, Poleline, Trejo, and 6th South. (at least 2,359 ballots*)
- -1 (didn’t have total # of ballots) attributed to sorting error - didn’t sort collocated precinct’s ballots.
- Race audited: Republican House Seat 34B (Raybould/Nate).

Day 3 Total - at least 6,687 ballots* reviewed

2 variances (-2) noted, both attributed to sorting errors = 0.029%

“ALL counties on Friday had to have all absentees and early votes sorted into precincts, as they procedurally central count all those ballots as a single grouping,” explained Chief Deputy SOS Chad Houck. “This process was the single biggest challenge and cause of initial errors, because in these settings, a single machine can and would read all ballots county wide and then publish a report with the individual precinct results. We had to sort over 12,000 ballots into stacks, looking for only approximately 1,600 specific ones.” As a result, all the variances found on Friday were ultimately related to sorting errors.

GRAND TOTAL (over three days) – at least 19,775 ballots* reviewed

6 variations overall w/ all but 1 attributed/explained (6 of 20,000 = .030% error)

Overall, all but 1 ballot accounted for (1 in 20,000 = .005% error)

**Ballot count numbers are based on number of gubernatorial votes cast in the Republican primary, and as such, are a minimum known number of ballots available in that precinct for review. Actual ballots reviewed were higher due to overvotes and undervotes.*
